Reza Abdollahipour

Palacký University Olomouc,

IRAN

Reza is an expert in the science of human movement, holding a PhD in Kinanthropology (Motor Control & Learning) from Palacký University Olomouc. Reza's work focuses on attentional and motivational factors that enhance motor performance and learning. As a dedicated experimental researcher, he explores how motor skills are acquired and refined across diverse populations, including healthy individuals, children with Developmental Coordination Disorder (DCD) and/or ADHD, and individuals with visual or hearing impairments.

His academic expertise is complemented by elite-level practical experience. Reza has served as Iran's National Coach and an International Judge in Aerobic Gymnastics.

In his free time, Reza enjoys playing badminton, swimming, running, hiking in nature, and spending quality time with friends.
